

ACA Website Content Manager

- Do you love editing
- Are you naturally organized?
- Do you have experience with website content management systems?
- Do you have technical developmental skills?
- And are you interested in learning about Americans living abroad?

If you can answer yes to the above questions, you are the volunteer we are looking for and need on board with us today!

Our website is chock-full of information on issues that concerns American citizens living abroad. The breadth and depth of the information can be challenging for users if it is not properly presented and well-organized. <https://www.americansabroad.org/>

We need a volunteer who excited to learn about the issues and able to develop an advantageous method of presenting the information through our website content management system.

Our organization needs someone with technical skills and with creative and leadership skills to take charge of developing a high-impact website that offers a best-in-class content management system.

You will be in charge of publishing and updating content, editing, maintaining continuity of themes, designing layout, streamlining navigation, creating new modules for online engagement and increasing online presence to potential customers.

In this role you would interact with key members of our management committee based in various countries. You would have excellent exposure to core issues affecting overseas Americans. Your ability to synthesize the scope of our issues and design a website that can adapt dynamically to what we do will be of primary importance.

Please let us know if that volunteer is you!
